

Smart Producer v1

Smart Producer began as a website template that's design was to engage with the customer on a more personal level. It's idea prompted a much needed well throughout form/rating product that sought to produce more data for small insurance agencies across the country.

Smart Producer Concepts

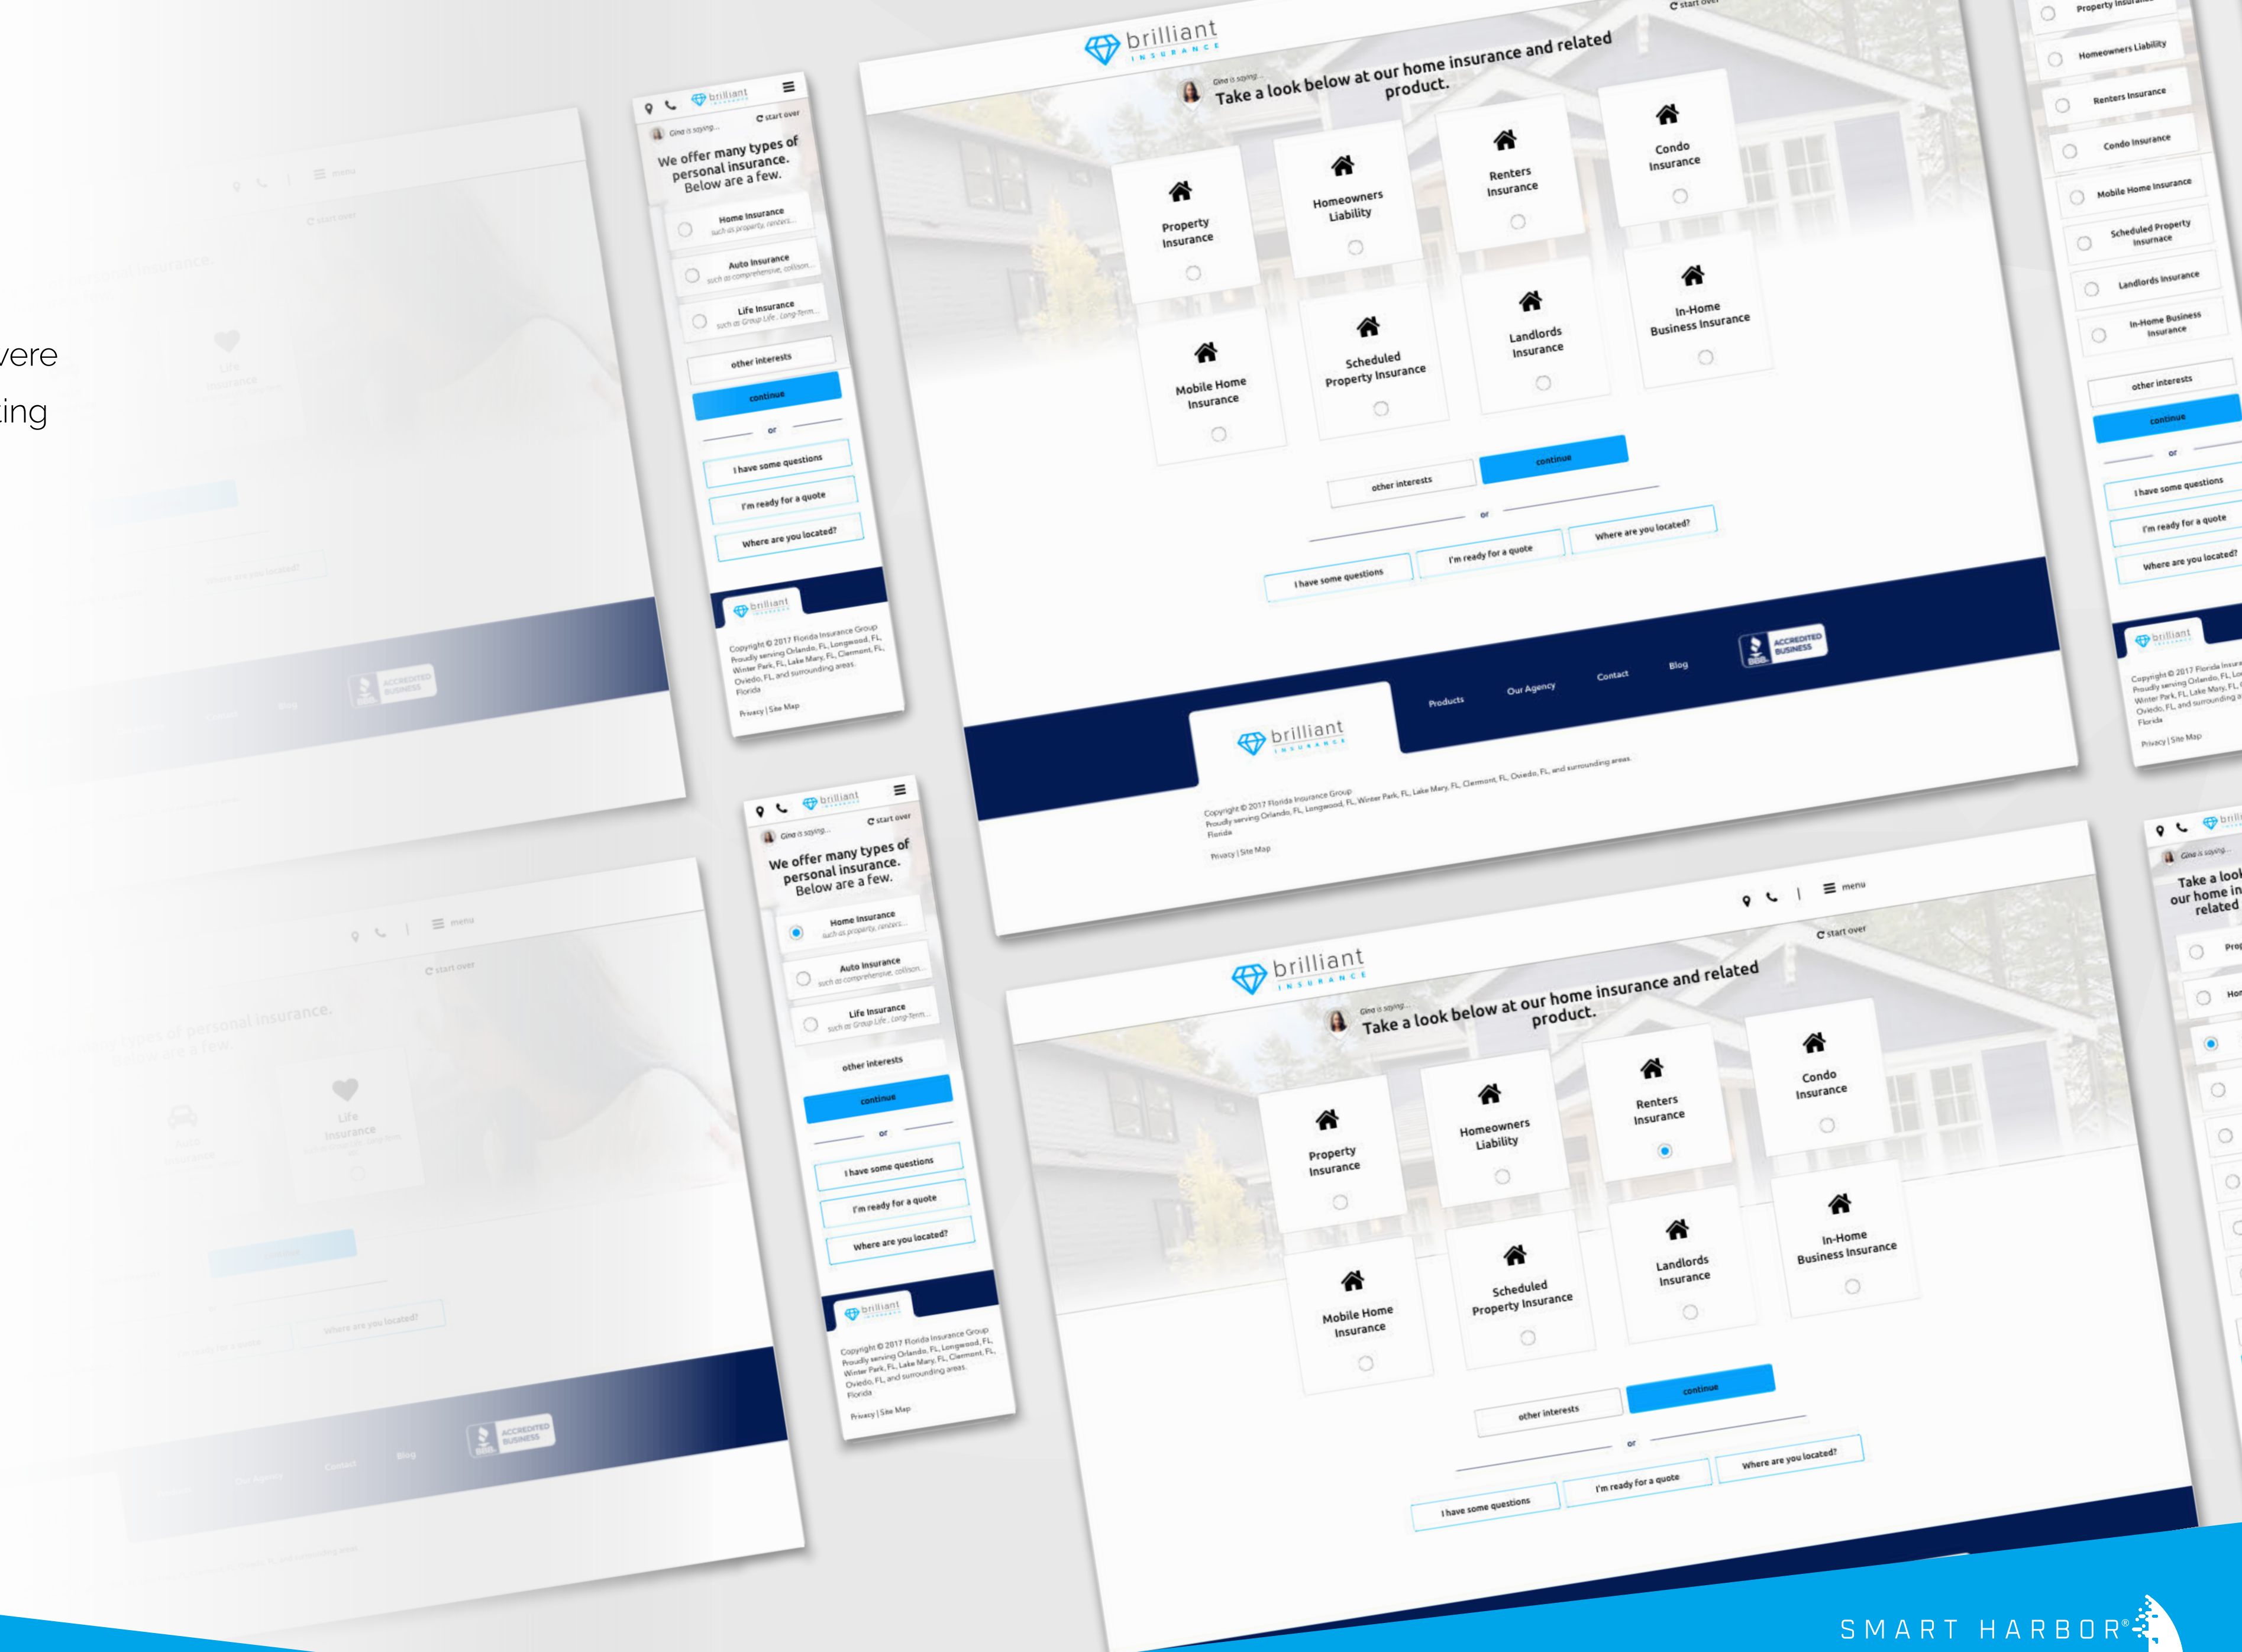

After brainstorming with the team, questions were asked if our DEV team could create a form/rating product that could change the industry.

Smart Producer

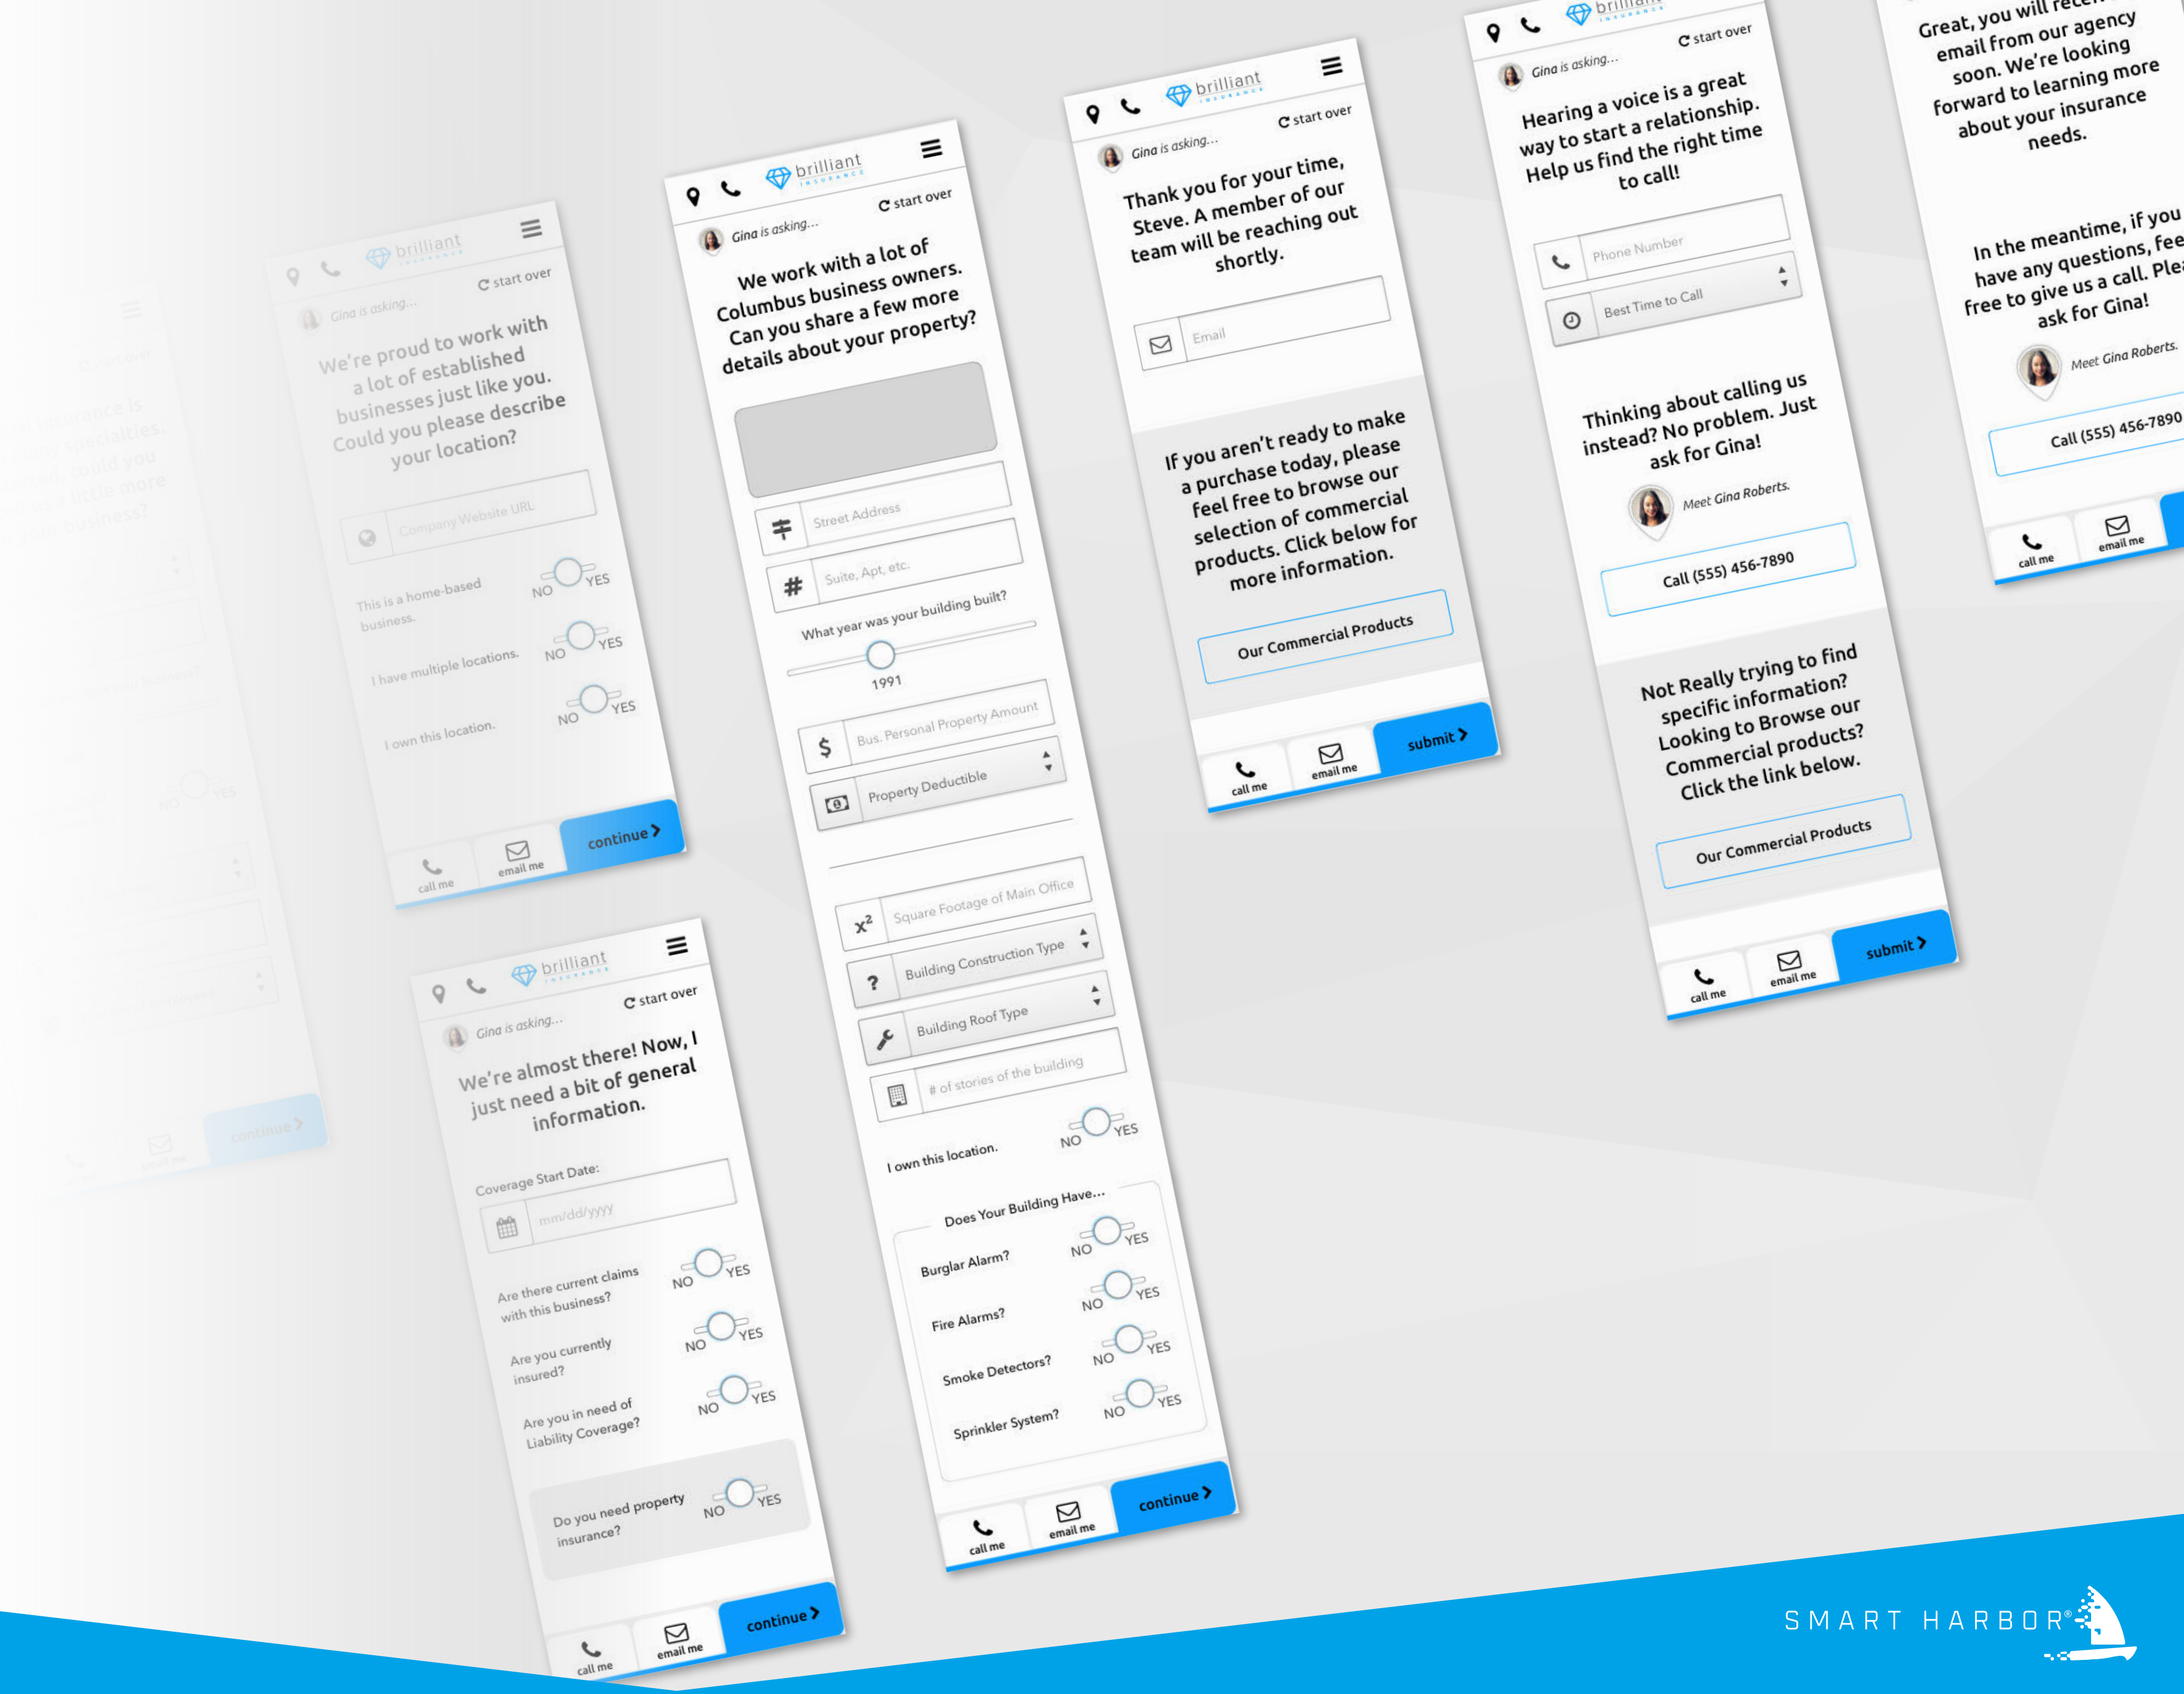

v1 Prototype

With a lot of planning and concepting, the data producing product and it's many fuctioning parts was born. It could be a stand-alone product or added to a Smart Harbor website template.

Smart Producer

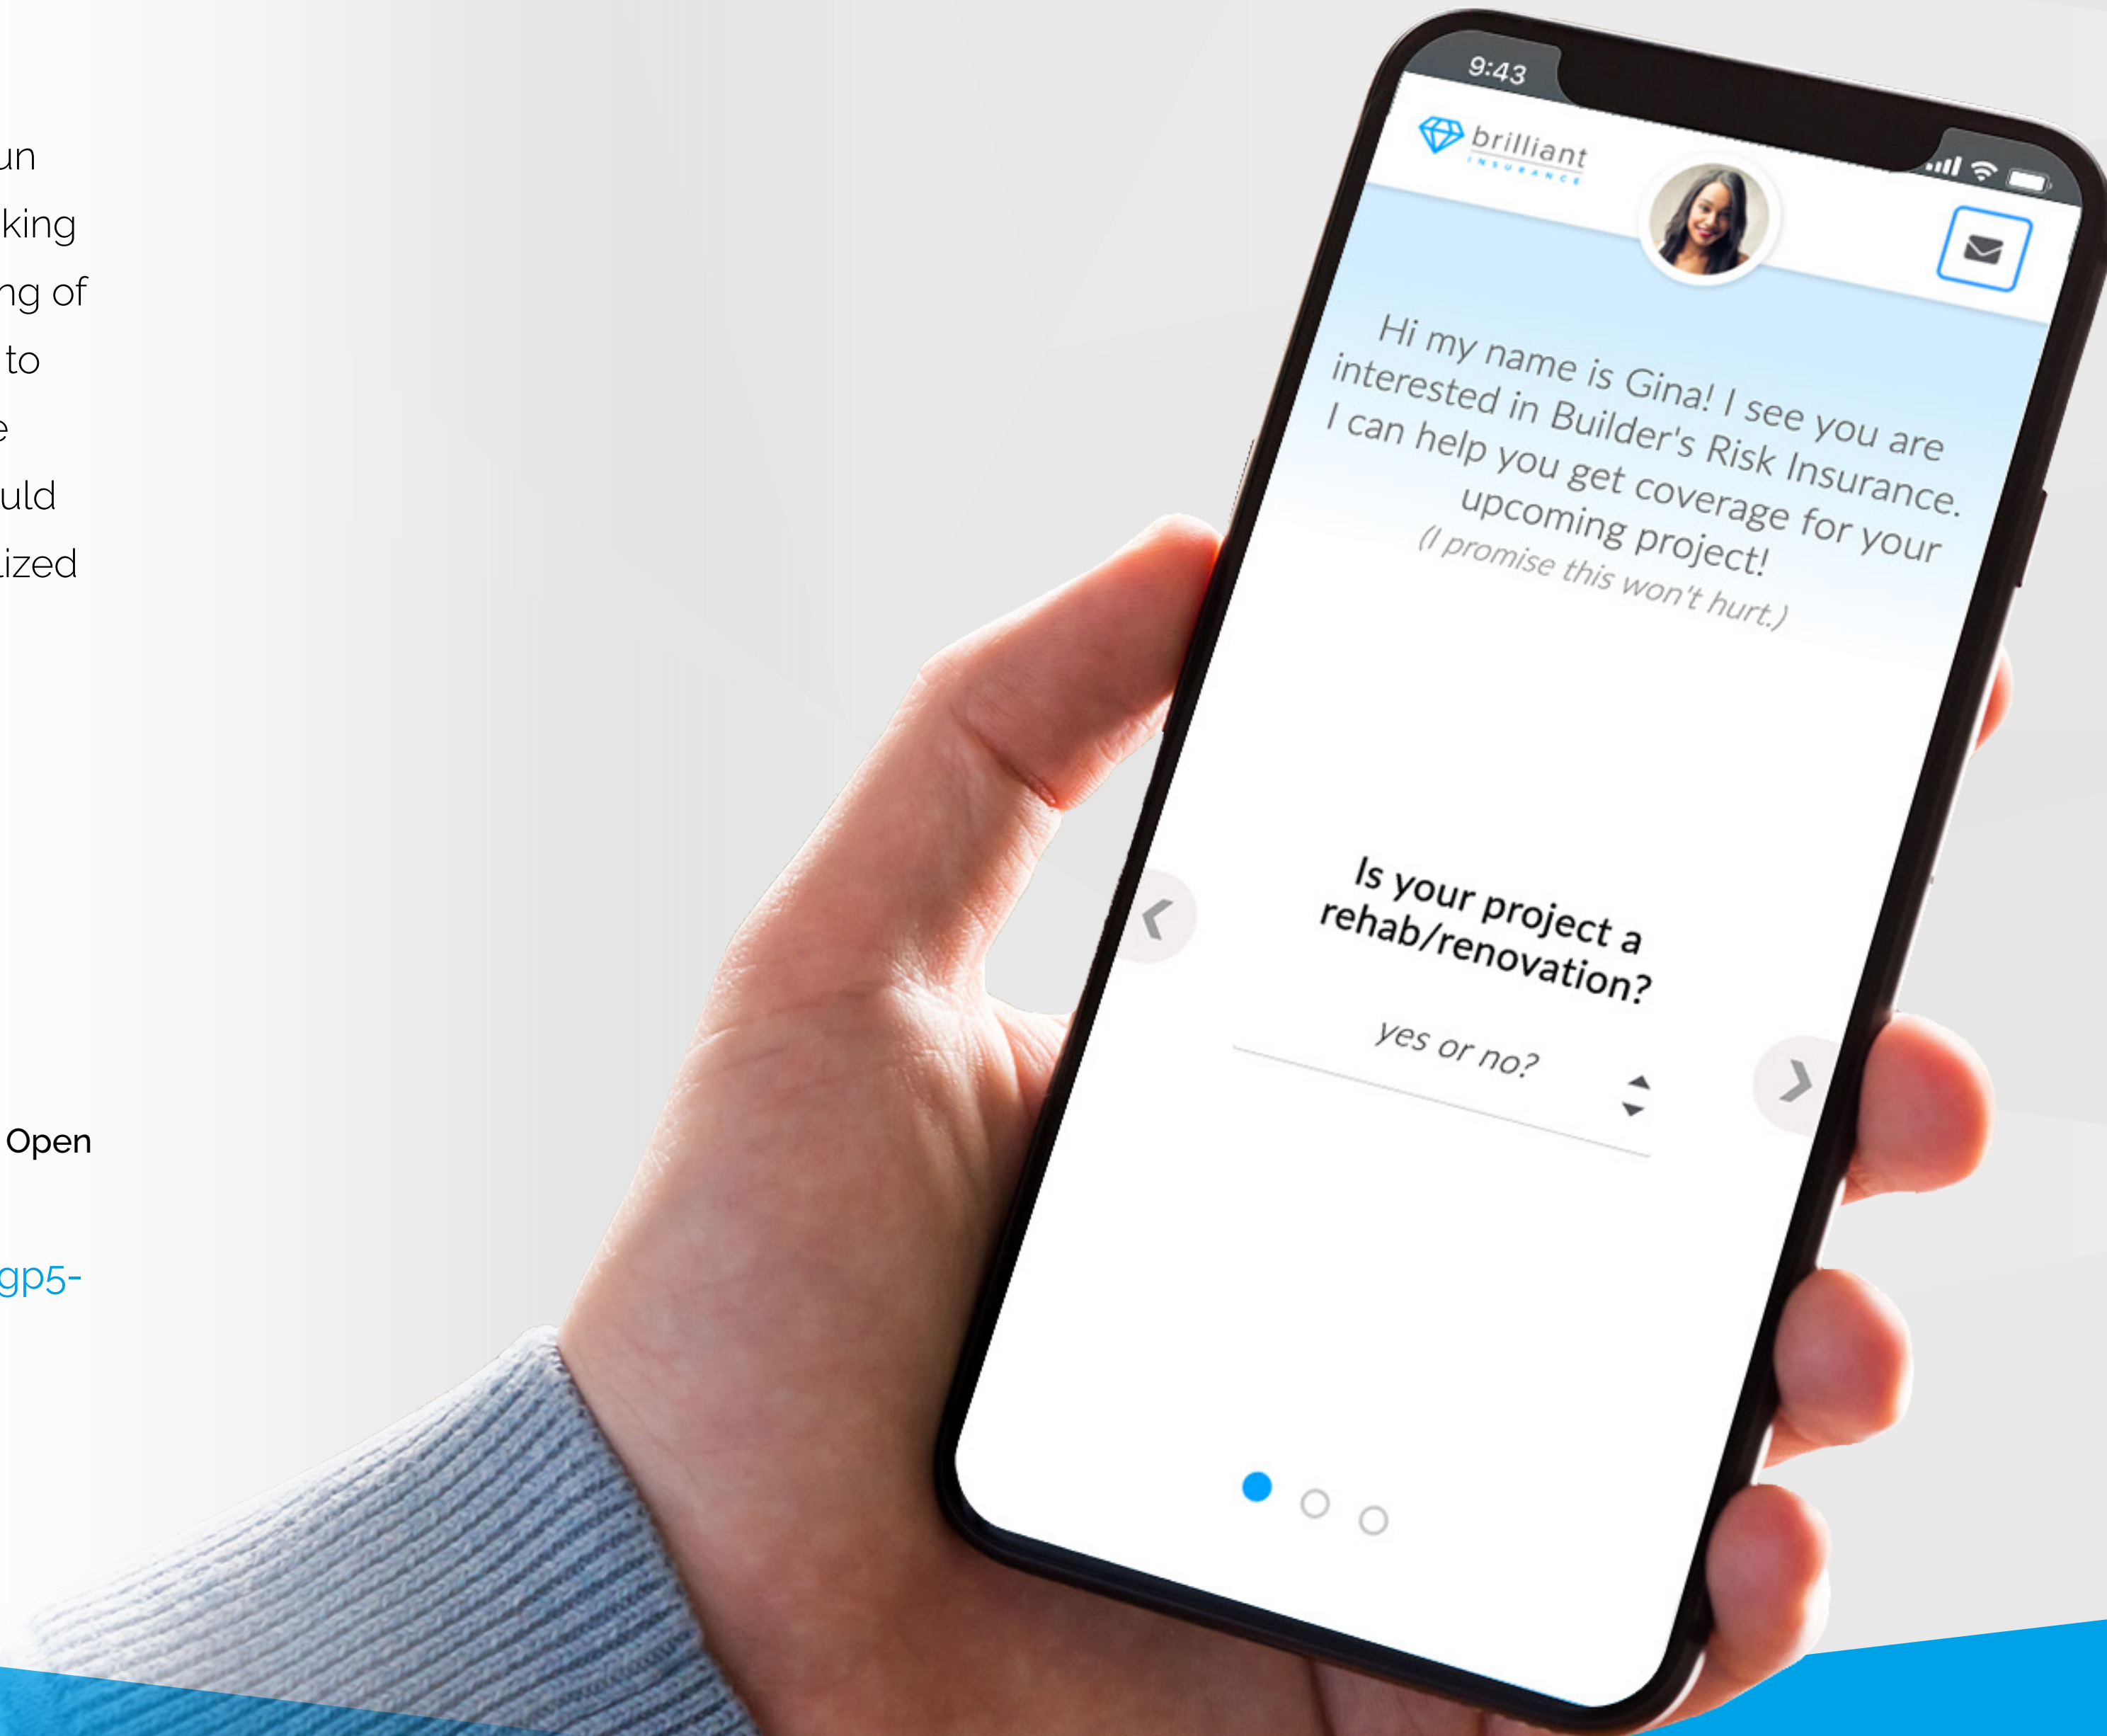

v2 Prototype

Smart Producer v2 concept was to be a more fun and engaging way to complete the form by making the Q&A easy, fun and flashy toward the beginning of the survey, while moving the difficult questions to the end. This would cause a rise in data capture before the potential form was abandoned or would cause a customer to often finish when they realized they had already gone so far in the process.

Website Templates

Website templates were a key part of Smart Harbor's revenue. The templates had to perform well on both desktop and mobile. The links below provide a span of concept designs that were created by designing one template everyday day for 2 weeks.

The Harbor CMS

Before any future templates were to be coded, a new (wix like) CMS had to be created to take pressure off of our onboarding team.

This bank was growing in size and wanted to have a site that reflected that while keeping much of their current website layout. After research and concepting I came up with a sophisticated yet simple design that gives them the professionalism they were looking for while keeping the look and layout ADA compliant.

I was given images of their newly remodeled branch they were planning to push out to all the branches in the coming weeks. In seeing the modern rustic wood throughout the new branch and how much pride they had in the new look, I decided to incorporate it into the design.

Driveline Kit

The project was given to me to enhance the old illustration guide and be more descriptive with the illustrations so that the consumer understands the process better.

I was given the actual kit to aid me in the drawing, creating all the illustrations using the kit and my hands as reference. All illustrations are were finished as completely vector.
